

NEW ISSUES

MAPPING AND CHARTING

NOAA Debuts a Next Version of NowCOAST: Web Mapping Portal to Real-time Coastal Observations and NOAA Forecasts

FYI — NOAA's Coast Survey Development Laboratory released version 2.0 of its Internet mapping portal called nowCOAST. The Web portal allows one-stop access for the nation's coastal community to quickly display online, real-time coastal observations and NOAA forecasts for any U.S. coastal region. The new version, located at <http://nowcoast.noaa.gov>, features a new map viewer, separate 'Databrowser' window and informational web page, and new links to additional observations and NOAA forecasts.

John.Kelley@noaa.gov

NOAA Responds to Change in Traffic Separation Scheme in Puget Sound

FYI — On January 5, Office of Coast Survey and U.S. Coast Guard (USCG) personnel discussed upcoming changes to the traffic separation scheme in Puget Sound near the Canadian border. NOAA provided hydrographic information for Commencement Bay, where the USCG has concerns about anchored ships dragging anchor.

Edward.J.Vandenameele@noaa.gov

NOAA Attends World-Renowned Hydrographic Surveying Course

FYI — On January 3–8, staff from the Office of Coast Survey, U.S. Naval Oceanographic Office, and the private sector will attend multibeam sonar training at the 37th Annual Ocean Mapping Group Multibeam Course in Gulfport, Mississippi. The course, hosted by the University of New Hampshire and the University of New Brunswick, features four world-renowned multibeam specialists discussing calibration and positioning methods, survey planning, data processing, visualization, and quality control.

Mike.Gibson@noaa.gov

NOAA Set to Host Panel of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers

FYI — On January 14, NOAA's Coast Survey Development Laboratory will host and present information at a meeting of the Ship Controllability Panel under the Technical and Research Program of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers (SNAME). Pilots, educators, simulation experts, and others from the marine industry (ship designers, builders, and operators), academics, government agencies, insurance groups, and others will discuss improving the maneuverability of ships, waterway design, and aids to navigation.

Maureen.Kenny@noaa.gov

COASTAL AND MARINE RESOURCES

Sanctuary Leadership Team to Discuss Strategic Priorities and Convene Shareholders

FYI — NOAA's National Marine Sanctuary Program's Leadership Team will hold a semiannual meeting January 10-14 in San Francisco on innovative and collaborative Federal, state, and nongovernmental efforts for ocean protection and conservation. The Ocean Forum, sponsored by the Commonwealth Club of San Francisco, Farallones Marine Sanctuary Association, and the National Marine Sanctuary Foundation, will focus on steps that will impact California's coasts and ocean and the potential impact of individual actions on ocean health. Leon Panetta, Ocean Forum Director, is the keynote speaker.

The semiannual meeting will also focus on community-based projects for Pillar State Harbor related to the harbor's history, culture, maritime heritage, and commercial and recreational value. Additionally, NMSP will discuss the increasing collaboration with National Park Service, strategic planning, and performance management.

Karen Reyna (415) 561-6622 (re: Pillar Point Harbor) and Michael Murphy (301) 563-1169

The Hawaiian Islands Humpback Whale NMS Joins Community in Preserving Ancient Fishpond

FYI — The Hawaiian Islands Humpback Whale National Marine Sanctuary and the Association of the Fishponds of Maui are cosponsoring the January 9 dedication to begin rebuilding the royal Hawaiian fishpond, constructed between 1400 and 1500 A.D. This event culminates a decade of planning, fundraising, and obtaining permits. Congressman Ed Case, Peter Young, chairman of the board of the Hawaii Department of Land and Natural Resources and other officials will attend.

STATUS UPDATES

MAPPING, CHARTING, AND NAVIGATION

Time Charter Update

FYI — On January 1, the NOAA Hydrographic Survey Time Charter vessel DAVIDSON arrived in Gulfport, Mississippi, to begin mobilization and systems testing. The ship is scheduled to depart on January 10 to begin survey operations off the Louisiana Coast at the approaches to Atchafalaya River and Bay.
